The Power of Preservation: Announcing 2017 Pennsylvania Historic Preservation Award Recipients

Twenty-three people and projects located across the state were selected to receive Pennsylvania Historic Preservation Awards this year. The awards will be presented at a ceremony and reception on October 12 at The State Museum of Pennsylvania in Harrisburg, with Pennsylvania's First Lady Frances Wolf attending.

This year's highest honors go to The Progress Fund, a Westmoreland County community development lender, which will receive the F. Otto Haas Award for outstanding individual achievements in historic preservation, and James L. Brown IV, of the Parkside Development Corporation in Philadelphia, recognized with the Henry A. Jordan Award for outstanding historic preservation efforts at the local level. The awards are hosted by Preservation Pennsylvania, the commonwealth's only statewide, private, nonprofit membership organization dedicated to the protection of historically and architecturally significant places.

"The range of this year's awards honorees -- from loans and technical assistance to place-making and redevelopment -- demonstrates that preservation has evolved from early focus on saving a single building into a powerful tool for economic stimulus and neighborhood revitalization," said Mindy Crawford, Executive Director of Preservation Pennsylvania.
